HEERF III Instructions for Student Appeals

The image is a screenshot of the Lindenwood University website. At the top, the university's name "LINDENWOOD UNIVERSITY" is displayed in a stylized, metallic font. Below the name, there is a navigation bar with the words "HOME", "ABOUT", "ACADEMICS", "ADMISSIONS", "FINANCIAL AID", "SPORTS", and "CONTACT". The main content area features a large heading "HEERF III Instructions for Student Appeals" and a sub-heading "We are pleased to announce that Lindenwood University has received funding from the U.S. Department of Education Higher Education Emergency Relief Fund (HEERF III). A portion of these funds will be used to provide emergency financial aid grants to students who have the option to request assistance if you have faced a hardship due to the pandemic." Below this, there is a section titled "HEERF III Emergency Financial Aid Grant" with a list of eligible expenses: "tuition, fees, books, supplies, technology, course materials or child care, health care (including mental health care), and other expenses directly related to the student's education." A note states "Students must be currently enrolled at Lindenwood University during the Spring 2021 semester." There is a section for "Application Process" with a link to "https://www.lindenwood.edu/astudent/information.aspx#HEERFIII" and a note that "Students are only allowed to receive one emergency grant through HEERF III." The bottom of the page shows a footer with the university's name and contact information.
